Lambchop:
(in a tiny voice) I went into the woods. I wanted an adventure!
I am sorry I didn't ask. Do you still love me?

Person: Oh, yes, my little puppet. I do, I do. Now that you are home and safe again, tell me about your woodland adventure.

Lambchop: (very dramatically) It was a dark and stormy day.

Person: NO – it wasn't.

Lambchop: Okay, it was a lovely day. I went for a walk and even though I was not supposed to – I walked all the way to the edge of the woods – and I went in!

Person: Then what happened?

Lambchop: I met someone by the stream who was washing her food in her paws. She was wearing a black mask around her eyes and she had a lovely puffy tail with rings around it.

Person: (to audience) What do you think it was?

Raccoon: (appears on stage)

Person: Will you tell us more about your adventure?

Lambchop: Well, I also met a cute little creature who was running up and down trees, looking for nuts to eat, and he had a beautiful bushy tail.

Person: (to audience) What do you think it was?

Squirrel: (appears on stage leaping about and chattering)

Person: Anything else, sweetie?

Lambchop: Yes. I saw something very strange at the pond – a green creature who lived in a rock. He was on a log and then slipped into the water.

Person: Do you think the creature lived in a shell but it just looked like a rock to you?

Lambchop: Maybe. (to audience) Who do you think it was?

Turtle: (appears on stage going in and out of his shell)

Lambchop: Then, I was quite frightened! I saw a really, really big brown creature! It was eating blueberries and it growled at me!

(to audience) Who do you think it was?

Bear: (appears on stage, says to Lambchop:) I'm sorry I frightened you, little one.

Bear & Lambchop: (leave together, friends forever)
